

"We are in the fortunate position of having a national cattle identification program that has proven that it can meet international requirements for Age Verification."

- Ben Thorlakson, Canadian Beef Export Federation Chairman

Benefits of Age Verification

With international trading partners proposing Age Verification information as a pre-requisite for export, producers are increasing this potential access to domestic and international markets by submitting birth date data. The Age Verification website also allows producers to track additional herd management information, obtain regular program updates, and submit feedback to the CCIA. In addition, Age Verification compliments future initiatives such as Full Animal Movement Tracking and Premise Identification.

"In order to meet the needs of all producers, we have created a database that can be utilized by those without computers." – Nadine Meade, Project Manager of CCIA Database Enhancements

What is Age Verification?

Age Verification is the association of animal birth date data with an Animal Identification Number (Single Tag or Tag Group). With the ever increasing demand for accurate age determination in Canadian cattle, the CCIA implemented technological advancements to the national database that provides an effective and internationally recognized Age Verification Process. This voluntary program enables producers to store information and have it readily available should it be required by domestic or export markets. Producers who do not have internet access can assign a third-party user to submit information on their behalf.

Validation

Prior to being able to submit data for the first time, users must validate themselves on the Age Verification Website. This step ensures the highest data integrity and security is met at all times.

- Enter all contact information including any tag number previously purchased (producers)
- Create a user name and password to be used in future visits to the site

After being successfully validated, users can log in at any time with their user name and password.
